LAW IS BAYING
CLOSE ON HEELS
OF KIDNAP RING

Some Definite Clues In Bremer's Case are Followed

St. Paul, Minn., Feb. 9.—(AP)—
The law bayed close on the heels of Edward Bremer's kidnapers today.

The hunt swung in widening circles, blazed by several definite clues, while the 37-year-old victim of the kidnapers remained abed under doctor's orders.

The Department of Justice, priding itself on a near-perfect record in running down abductors, bent methodically over a trail, three days cold, that led from St. Paul and ended at Rochester, Minn., where Bremer was freed late Wednesday night.

Other trails were being swiftly followed, too. There were leads which gave definite indications that the law was not far behind the kidnapers and the $200,000 ransom the gang exacted for Bremer's release.

The officers had, among other information, the story of Bremer himself. The president and owner of the Commercial State Bank was not as helpful as they had hoped, officers admitted, but his story gave them several pegs on which to hang a plan of action.

10 or 12 in Gang

There were 10 or 12 members of the gang, Bremer said. He based the estimate on the sound of their voices as they held him captive 22 days. He got no view of any of them, he said, for he was kept captive in a dark room from the time he was kidnapped, January 17, until three men took him in an automobile and pushed him, blindfolded, from the car in Rochester.

During his imprisonment, he said, they threatened to kill him if he disobeyed their commands; and guards, working in relays of two, were with him constantly.

Father Offers Little

Adolph Bremer, father of the kidnap victim and the man who arranged for the money with which to meet the huge ransom demand, had little to offer in the way of help to the officers.

Communications exchanged with the kidnapers, however, were available to the state, city and federal officers who are joined in the hunt. It is on these communications and the experience of Walter Magee, the intermediary who delivered the ransom money in $5 and $10 bills—that the officers pin their hopes.

It was Magee who received the first note, demanding $200,000 and warning against "bargaining with us." It was left on his office doorstep a few hours after Bremer was seized.

One Plan Dropped

It was Magee, too, who just prior to last Saturday was to have gone to Des Moines with the $200,000, registered at a hotel named by the kidnapers and used a pseudonym supplied by the gang. At the time Magee received these instructions his ransom was guarded by a time clock in a St. Paul bank and the plan could not be followed. Silence masked the gang's activities then, prompting Adolph, the father, to issue his appeal for early release of his son and giving the mob three days and three nights in which to communicate with assurance of no police interference.

Spurred to action by the elderly brewer's word of honor, the captors immediately conveyed final instructions for turning over the money.

Found Note in Car

Magee followed orders. He went to a pre-arranged place in St. Paul, looked in a strange automobile parked at the curb at a specified place, and read a note secreted in a pocket of the car. In accordance with instructions, he replaced the note, climbed in the car with the money, and drove south.

At Fairbault, Minn., he took a cross road and drove to 15 miles an hour, and slowed in the lonely night. Then the signal—four flashes of an automobile's headlights.

Magee stopped, placed the money on the ground, re-entered the car, and drove away.

Doctor May Help

The experience of Dr. H. T. Nippert, family friend and physician of the Bremers, also was counted upon to figure in the hunt. Nippert, though he refused to confirm it, was understood to have come to the kidnap fair at the gang's orders, to treat Bremer.

The victim had been slugged with pistol butts by two of the kidnapers when they invaded his car the morning of January 17, when he was enroute to the bank. The car later was found abandoned, its interior spotted with blood.

Nippert blindfolded, was taken for a five or six hour automobile ride at night after receiving the second contact made with the family by the gang. That contact was delivery of three notes in an envelope addressed to Nippert and slipped under his front door Jan. 20.

The front door glass was shattered by a milk bottle to attract his attention to the missives. One letter was addressed to him, another to his wife.

DIXON BOY IS SOUGHT: HORSE
THEFT CHARGED

John Greenfield Is Hunted by State
Parole Officer

State parole officers are making a search for 16-year-old John Greenfield of this city, according to word which has been received by Chief of Police J. D. Van Bibber from Probation Officer Rorak of Cambridge. Besides being wanted for a second violation of his parole, he is said to be wanted for the theft of a horse from a farm.

Greenfield, a former inmate of the St. Charles state training school for boys, was returned to the institution late last summer following a series of burglaries in this city. Late in December, he was paroled to a farmer residing near St. Augustine, Ill., and remained in this home for about three weeks.

He is then reported to have taken a fine horse from the barn and, without giving any notice, to have ridden the animal a distance of about eight miles where he stopped at another farm.

Here he told a story of having ridden from the west and offered the horse for sale for $10. The farmer was suspicious of his story and invited him to remain and rest up after his long ride from the west. Greenfield eventually became suspicious about the same time and departed across fields suddenly, leaving the stolen horse standing in the barn yard. No word of him has been received since, the parole officers' report states.

Eleven Companies Submitted Identical
Proposals

Bids for 1,600,000 barrels of cement for state use were opened in Springfield today and, acting in the interests of this community, Representative John P. Devine of Dixon today sent a telegram to the office of Governor Horner asking that the Medusa Company's factory at Dixon be allotted a full share of the cement contracts.

The Dixon plant has been closed down most of the time for the past two years and price controversies have resulted in most of the state cement being purchased from plants in the LaSalle district. Hundreds of workmen have been idle in Dixon for a long period because of the lack of orders for the Dixon plant. It is to be hoped that Mr. Devine's intercession will bear fruit and bring orders which will put the local factory into operation.

BIDS ARE IDENTICAL

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—(AP)—
Identical bids averaging 37 cents higher than the prices rejected a year ago were unofficially reported today to have been submitted to the state by eleven cement companies.

No comment was made by officials in the state Department of Public Works and Buildings, but it was understood that the bids would be taken under advisement pending the return of Governor Horner, who will be on a vacation until about Feb. 20.

The state had called for bids on 1,600,000 barrels of cement needed for highway construction this year.

Another cement war was in prospect as a result of the identical bids at higher prices.

About $2 Per Bbl.

It was unofficially understood that the bids submitted today were approximately at $2 a barrel.

Last year identical bids averaging $1.62 a barrel were rejected three times by Governor Horner before the state, acting under a special law, negotiated for the purchase of 2,000,000 barrels at $1.44.

Illinois officials have charged that the cement manufacturers have combined to discriminate against the state by quoting the same figures at excessive rates.

The action today was taken only after the Recovery Administration had suspended one section of the cement code under which the manufacturers claimed by December that they were forbidden to sell a year's supply to the state.

Sister of Former

Dixon Man Seeking to Break His Will

Mrs. Mary Lyon of Highland Park, through her attorneys, Dixon, Devine, Bracken and Dixon of this city, has instituted proceedings in the Lee County Circuit Court to set aside the will of the late William E. Cahill, who suicided almost a year ago by firing a bullet into his brain at Woodstock while returning home from a visit at Freeport.

Mrs. Lyon, a sister of the former hotel manager, sets forth that she was not named in the will and has brought the action against her brother, Charles L. Cahill of this city. In her bill of complaint, she alleges that her deceased brother was in his dotage and was not of sound mind and memory at the time he executed the will and was incapable of making a just and proper distribution of his estate.

MACCRACKEN, IN
NOTE, QUESTION-
ED SENATE POWER

Order for Immediate Arrest Was Adopted
After Reading

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—The Senate, defied today by William P. MacCracken—Hoover's Assistant Secretary of Commerce for Air—ordered his arrest.

He failed to appear for the scheduled opening of his trial on contempt charges, challenging the Senate's authority.

Three co-defendants, all attached to air companies that benefited from air mail contracts in the last administration, were on hand, however.

Once the MacCracken position had been read to the Senate, Senator Black (D. Ala.), chairman of the committee investigating air mail contracts, introduced the resolution ordering MacCracken's immediate arrest.

Questions Power

The charge against him was in connection with removal and destruction of air mail files from his office records which had been under subpoena by the Senate committee.

In a communication addressed to Vice-President Garner, read at the opening of the trial MacCracken said he would not "knowingly or intentionally" violate any constitutional powers of the Senate, and denied the constitutional right of that body to "compel the attendance of a private citizen" before it on the grounds charged.

Authorities Have Con-

Chicago, Feb. 9.—(AP)—State parole officials today planned a hunt for other young victims of a white slavery ring which it is charged dealt in prison girls from an Illinois institution.

Three girls from the Geneva Home for Girls, a house of correction, were among 27 persons arrested in a raid here which authorities say shattered extensive operations of the ring.

Believing that many others of the home's inmates may have been aided to escape for the same purpose, George T. Scully, State Parole Supervisor, said today he had hope of finding them through information furnished by the men and women in the raid.

The authorities also had to aid them a confession they said had been made by Angelo Louisa, proprietor of a roadhouse near Coal City, Ill. He told them that two

Another Is Reprimanded

Reply to Query

Chicago, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Francis P. Hayes, one of two men selected for jury service in the Factor kidnapping trial and then removed from the box and taken into custody, was sentenced today to six months in jail for giving a false answer when he was examined.

The second juror, Russell H. Brownell, an apartment house keeper was dismissed with a reprimand.

In ordering the six-months sentence for Hayes, presiding Judge Michael Feinberg declared that perjury is an increasing menace to the administration of justice and said "when it appears in the jury box, which is society's last hope, it must be punished."

On Same Question

Both jurors tripped up on the same question, answering "no" to an inquiry whether they or any member of their families had ever been involved in a criminal case. Hayes was confronted a day later by information that two of his brothers and a son were serving prison terms. Admit

Here's How They Won't Look in Ring

If you think this is the beginning of a social argument, have another guess. It was just the way Primo Carnera (left), the world's heavy weight champ and Tommy Loughran had of saying how-de-do when they met at a Palm Beach, Fla., ball. Those stiff shirts will give way to stiff punches when their battle for the championship begins.

200 Men Thrown Out of Work by Million Dollar Fire Today

Paulsboro, N. J., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Fire early today destroyed five buildings at the Lineoleum manufacturing plant of Sandura, Inc.; two small apartment houses and three bungalows with a loss estimated at $1,100,000.
Seven families were made homeless, two firemen were injured and several suffered from frostbite as they battled the flames in sub-zero weather.
Robert Stewart, superintendent of the plant, estimated the loss for buildings and machinery at $600,000 and for stock at $300,000. The company owned all the buildings destroyed.
Stewart said 200 men will be thrown out of work.

The 1600 officers and men of the Fort spent yesterday in an intensive search of the 70,000-acre Army post in belief the girl had been kidnapped, while state and federal officers hunted for her in Tacoma and Seattle.
She explained her mysterious absence by saying:
"I went to Seattle and walked the streets all the time I was away."
The girl was questioned at length in the presence of her uncle but no further details were announced.

SANKEY DEFEATS

schemes that netted him $60,000 in the Boettcher case and $12,000 in the kidnapping of Haskel Bohn of St. Paul, but it was unable to trick the law that snapped its talons on him in Chicago last week and flung him into a prison cell here.

No Lures For "Pal"
Sankey's mode of cheating justice held no lures for Gordon Alcorn, a companion, seized in Chicago a day after Sankey.

"I'll go into court and take mine that way," said Alcorn, who is held in a cell close to that which had been occupied by Sankey. Alcorn also was to have pleaded guilty today, but an inquest into Sankey's death may alter this plan.

With Sankey's passing, the government lost its chance of definitely ascertaining if the former Canadian, whose fancies led him to the tinsel honky-tonks and gaming tables of fashionable resorts in his heyday, had any connection with the Lindbergh baby kidnapping-murder that stirred a nation.

Department of Justice operatives have declared they believed Sankey had nothing to do with the Lindbergh crime. Melvin H. Purvis, Chicago, Department of Justice agent, who was here, refused to comment on the Sankey-Lindbergh angle, but it was known he questioned Sankey about the baby abduction.

Possible Clues
M. K. Kinkead, St. Paul, Ramsey County Attorney, clung to the belief, however, that Sankey had not been completely removed from the Lindbergh crime picture. He maintained that a mysterious telephone call to New Jersey, ten days after Col. Charles Lindbergh's first child was seized and killed, was made by Sankey.

This, together with notes and newspaper clippings on the case found on the Sankey turkey ranch at Gann Valley led Kinkead to believe the desperado might have been connected with that case.

His wife, Mrs. Fern Sankey, held in the county jail in lieu of $25,000 bond on a charge of conspiracy to kidnap as a result of the Boat-tender abduction, became hysterical when told of her husband's death.

To See Children
"Why couldn't I have spoken to him? Why couldn't I have spoken to him?" she sobbed when Holton Davenport, Sioux Falls, one of her attorneys, and H. D. Brown, Gann Valley, Buffalo county State Attorney, broke the news to her.

She screamed for an hour in her cell before a trained nurse could quiet her. A physician was summoned to treat her.

"She is very, very nervous," Dr. S. A. Kellar, government physician, said later, "but it is quite probable she will be all right."

Mrs. Sankey was asked if she wished to have her children with her. Ethel, 15, and Orville, 6, were to arrive here today.
"Did you wish them to start immediately?"
"No, no. Not the baby. Not now."

Hundred Chicks, Poultry House, Fuel for Flames

A fire, believed to have started from a kerosene brooder in the poultry house at the Dr. C. A. Robbins home, 1006 North Galena avenue, burned about 100 baby chicks and resulted in the total loss of the building about 2:30 this afternoon. The fire department was summoned but the fire had gained considerable headway and, fanned by a high wind, soon consumed the structure and its contents.

Hitch-Hiker Gave Birth to Baby Girl

Mexico, Mo., Feb. 9.—(AP)—As Mrs. James McFadden was busy in her home a woman, about 23 years old, walked into the yard and asked permission to come in and rest. "I can't go any further," she said.
Within an hour the woman had given birth to a seven-pound daughter. The mother, giving her name as Mrs. Mabel Roberts of Quincy, Ill., said she hitch-hiked here. She said she had "not been home much the last four years."

Bad Freight Wreck on C. & E. I. Lines

Momence, Ill., Feb. 9.—(AP)—A great snarl of wreckage blocked the main line of the Chicago & Eastern Illinois Railroad today where 27 freight cars plunged from the track last night and piled up in a ravine on the right of way.

Not one member of the train crew was hurt in the spectacular accident officials stated.
The wreck occurred here at 9:40 P. M. when a truck on one of the cars broke, and the 25 cars following crashed into a heap. Railway officers, who said the train was loaded with tinplate south-bound from Chicago, estimated it would be 36 hours before the line could be cleared. Meanwhile C. & E. I. traffic was being re-routed over the Illinois Central and New York Central lines.

The Dixon Evening Unit, Lee County Home Bureau, held a most delightful meeting, Wednesday evening, February 7, at the home of Miss Ethel Chronister. The lesson covering "Daily Care of a Patient" was in charge of Mrs. Hazel W. Miller, local leader. Important points in the nurse's daily routine were outlined and demonstrated, each member of the Unit making a record of all care and treatment on a nurse's daily record sheet. Dainty refreshments in keeping with St. Valentine's Day were served by the hostess. The recreation activities were in charge of Genevieve Dodd, and brought to a close one of the most profitable meetings of the Unit.

The lesson next month on "Care of the Sick Room" will be in charge of the Lee County Home Adviser, Mrs. Florence Syverud of Amboy. A St. Patrick's party and guest night is being planned.

From there the girls went to the Shaw home where they held their business meeting and elected a treasurer. Many Scout songs and camp songs were sung. Delightful refreshments were then served to the sixteen girls in attendance.

Ethel Lillian Ford led in the devotionals and the group sang "Girl's Golden Year." The president read a letter received from Alice Denison. The first two chapters were given from the study book "Today's Youth and Tomorrow's World" by Helen Kennedy. The president then introduced Mrs. Beech who told a little of the life in China and displayed many Chinese articles in which all the girls were keenly interested, especially in the beautiful gowns that the Chinese wear. MOON LADDER

By Helen Welshimer

I BUILT a ladder,
A tall one, last night,
Ran up the star-steps,
Bright flight after flight,

TO take down the moon
We had hung in the sky
One gay night last summer
When love drifted by.

ONE gay night not knowing
(We loved and were young!)
How crooked, how fragile
The lantern we swung.

THE moon I unfastened,
I might find a new moon
And want to go back!

Astronomers' Work Must Be Essence of Accuracy

Modern astronomical work involves a great amount of detail in observation, measurement, and computation. For example in obtaining the velocity in the line of sight of 523 of the hottest and most massive stars in the sky, 2,670 spectra were made with the 72-inch telescope at the Dominion Astrophysical Observatory of the Department of the Interior at Victoria, B. C., requiring the time of an observer at night for over 2,000 hours. In the measurement of these spectra by means of a measuring microscope the spectral lines were brought into coincidence with the spider thread in the microscope—an operation requiring great care and accuracy—at least 250,000 times. After the spectra were measured these measurements had to be transformed into velocities requiring about half as much time again and finally all the velocities discussed, an operation still in process. Consequently it does not seem surprising to learn that this piece of work occupied practically the entire time of two astronomers for over six years. However, this investigation was very profitable as it resulted in advances of considerable importance in our knowledge of the constitution and motions of the galaxy.

HISTORY OF WATER SUPPLY

LONG before the dawn of history, when life was a never ending battle against the forces of nature and only the fittest survived, the cavemen had to live near stream, lake or spring, and protect his right to drink thereat against the wild beasts of the forest. This primitive human knew he could not live without water so he made his crude home where water was available, and in so doing established the first known public water supply.

Nowadays people in this city don't have to make their homes beside the water. Our modern service brings the water to you—abundant, pure and wholesome water, throughout the many miles of city streets.

LOOSENESS OF YOUTH INDICTS PARENTS.

Whenever all other topics fail, you always can get an audience by declaring that the younger generation is going to the dogs.

This has been an especially popular game since the war. Books have been written, sermons have been preached, and editorials have been inscribed telling how youth has ignored the wisdom of age and set off down the primrose path. But once in a while it pays to look at the argument critically and see just what there is in it.

Here's a sample. Pupils at a large high school in a middlewestern city not long ago prepared to give a big dance. The dean of girls at the high school then laid down a set of rules to be followed at the dance, which was to be held in the school gymnasium.

These rules provided that pupils attending the dance must not smoke on the school campus, must not chew gum on the dance floor, must assume proper dancing positions, must not leave the gymnasium until after the dance was over, and must not go to any public dance or eating place afterward.

Those rules are simple enough. Properly enforced, they would preserve the outward appearance at the dance, prevent the youngster from sneaking out to parked autos for necking and gin-swaggering, and get all of them home promptly after the affair ended.

Now it might be argued that, if such rules are necessary youth inherently must be pretty wild and boisterous. But when you stop to think about it, you begin to see that the whole business actually is a reflection on the parents rather than on the young people.

After all, a youngster who has had the kind of home training that every parent ought to be competent to give isn't going to lounge around the school building with a cigarette in his mouth, or go to a formal dance with a face full of chewing gum, or introduce a Barbary Coast cude to a public dance floor.

If his parents have the right kind of understanding with him, he's going to get home promptly after it's over. It's even possible that his parents will have shown him that necking and drinking in a parked car is messy rather than exhilarating.

The fact that high school authorities have to make rules to cover those points simply shows that the parents have been falling down on their jobs. And right there is the answer to most of this talk about the wildness of youth. It's largely the fault of the older generation, not of the younger one.

When we complain that young people are doing this, that, and the other thing these days, we're really leveling an indictment at ourselves.

STILL SHIPPING LIQUOR.

The little island of Miquelon, home port for a fleet of rum-runners throughout the prohibition era, is not yet finished with the task of supplying liquor for thirsty American citizens.

Examination of the liquor import figures for December, recently released by the Department of Commerce, shows that this tiny island in that month sent to the United States distilled liquors worth $186,000 and wines valued at $131,000.

Since the island itself ferments no wine and distills no liquor, these stocks obviously originated farther afield; and one probably is doing the islanders no injustice by suspecting that to a certain extent they represent stocks laid in in the smuggling days.

And one wonders: Will Miquelon cease shipping liquor to the United States, once these stocks are gone, or will it continue to maintain its place as a source of supply for the American market, making its shipments legally instead of surreptitiously?

For all lifesaving measures devised by science, longevity has increased but a fraction in the ages over 60.—Dean Irving S. Cutter, Northwestern University Medical School.

You cannot guarantee the security of your children with wealth. Leave them moderately poor if you would do well by them. Bring them up to appreciate the finer things of life and let them live simply. These are the best guarantees you can leave them.—Dr. Norman O. Hutton, pastor of College Church, Wellesley, Mass.

We declare for our country the democratic form of government. We want a government where the people are the molders of their destiny.—United Mine Workers of America.

This news is apt to make many a motorist with that same similar regulation could be laid down for highways elsewhere. No one can take a motor trip nowadays without being obliged to look at a great number of roadside eyesores.

A 21-mile stretch of road completely lacking in such phenomena ought to be a rare treat for the eyes.

(READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE)

Wee Dotty watched the boys a while and then she jumped up, with a smile, and said, "Give me a shovel. I can dig as well as you."

"If we're to ever find that key, it's best, lads, that you call on me to lend a hand. Give me a chance. I'll show what I can do."

"Ha, ha!" laughed Duncy. "You're a girl, and I'll bet, if you take a whiff at digging, you'll get all tired out. You'd better stand aside."

"It takes a real strong lad like me to swing a shovel right, you see." Then Scouty broke right in. "Aw, let her try it once," cried he.

"Well, if you must, you can take mine," said Duncy. "That will be just fine, 'cause I can loaf and watch you. You won't last so very long."

So Dotty took the shovel and seemed very pleased to lend a hand. In just a little while she said, "I guess I've proved I'm strong."

"The Timmes' old man friend cried 'Say! You've cleaned more dirt out of the way than any of the little boys. You are the best of all."

And then he turned to Goldy and exclaimed, "You, too, can lend a hand. Climb right into the hole they've made. Be careful you don't fall!"

It wasn't long till Scouty said, "This big hole, now, is o'er my head. Perhaps we're in the wrong place." Then he stopped and shouted, "Geel!"

"I was mistaken, 'cause I've found the key. It's right here in the ground." They shortly pried it out. It was as big as it could be.

The old man smiled and said, "Well, now, we'll have to carry it somehow, until we reach the little gate to Nature Land. Let's go!"

Some of the Timmes lifted it. "Why, this won't bother us a bit," said Coppy. "Come on, Duncy, we can carry it, I know."

BUNK AND DEBUNK

By Dr. Joseph Fort Newton

"History is bunk," said Henry Ford; and he was right as regards much of it. "Fiction agreed upon," Napoleon called it. Or propaganda practiced on posterity, as some of us would prefer to say it.

A few years ago we heard a lot about the debunking of history, but it has been given up. It would require the rewriting of the human story, and the repainting of many historical portraits, many of which are exaggerations, idealistic or infamous, or just plain lies.

At the present hour, over vast areas of the earth, the turning of history into bunk for political ends goes on before our eyes. Indeed, without bunk in place of history, few existing political movements could hope to carry on. They are built upon lies and must be bolstered up.

In Italy, for example, an entire generation is being fed with a distortion of history in the past designed to shape the national imagination in the fashion of the ancient Roman Empire, and with a romantic story of the Latin race in human affairs—to prop up the Fascist tyranny.

In Russia, a race of youth are being taught a caricature of the economic and religious history of mankind. Fact is made to fit a false and one-sided philosophy, without regard to truth, and the concoction is rammed down the throats of the people by edict of a Dictator.

The same is true in Germany, where teachers are enforced by threat and outrage to teach the myth of a superior Aryan race. As H. G. Wells put it, picturesquely, the Aryans are no more a race than Golfers or Diabetics, and the whole fabric of the new legend rests upon an ethnological lie.

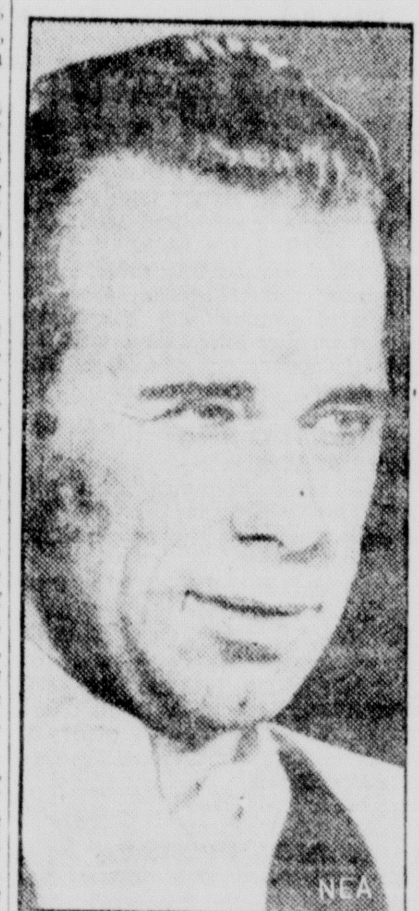

The Nordic nonsense taught among us is of like kind—mythology, not history; bunk with a purpose. Neither British nor American school history has ever been free from bunk—it is better:

Nurses Hatred In Jail Cell

today, but in the past it was actually shocking. We live in a glass house, and must not throw stones. Of course, in the clearer future, when the fascination of false issues has been dispelled by the searchlight of intelligence, the truth will be made plain; but today the bunksters have their way.

Nurses Hatred In Jail Cell

Sullen, remorseless, hating the society on which he has preyed, John Dillinger, captured outlaw, is shown here in a striking character study in Lake county jail at Crown Point, Ind., hoping, he says, for "one more chance" to shoot it out with his captors and escape.

ILLINOIS GRAIN CROP IMPERILED BY CHINCH BUGS

Farmers Urged to Take Precautions: How to Kill Them

The following article by Paul Potter in yesterday's Chicago Tribune, warning of chinch bug perils should cause every farmer in Lee and adjoining counties to take all possible precautions to avoid invasion of the insects:

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 7.—The forces of nature are running a merry race with the brain trust of the state special committee of farmers and agents of the government administration down here in the heart of the corn belt to see that no surplus corn is grown in 1934.

In every farm bureau office in the state special committees of farmers and agents of the government are busy helping farmers figure out their detailed reports—so intricate as an income tax form and just as strange to most farmers—on which the AAA will base the quotas of acreage to be grown next year.

The farmers who sign, and not all of them are signing, will be handed some of Uncle Sam's processing tax money as a premium for reducing the size of their corn fields and the number of pigs they grow.

Nature Does Some Controlling

But out along the fence rows, under the brush and wood piles, and in the straw stacks exists a greater menace to corn production than most farmers have reckoned with. Hordes of adult chinch bugs, each one capable of producing as high as 300 eggs next spring, lie dormant ready to fly to wheat, barley, and corn fields with the warm winds of spring.

Under one board a foot square a nearby farmer found by count more than 4,800 of these bugs. The fence rows of weeds and tall grass are harboring more billions of them than the wildest inflationist could count. According to W. P. Flint, state entomologist, in some areas the farmers alive to the situation are organizing into squads making a systematic cleanup of the winter havens of these voracious little bugs.

Urges Neighborhood Units

Recommendations are being made that all such areas be burned or plowed up completely. Since the adult bugs can fly ten or more miles next spring seeking a place to lay their eggs for the late summer hatch that eats whole fields of corn almost overnight, the experts are urging that neighborhood units.

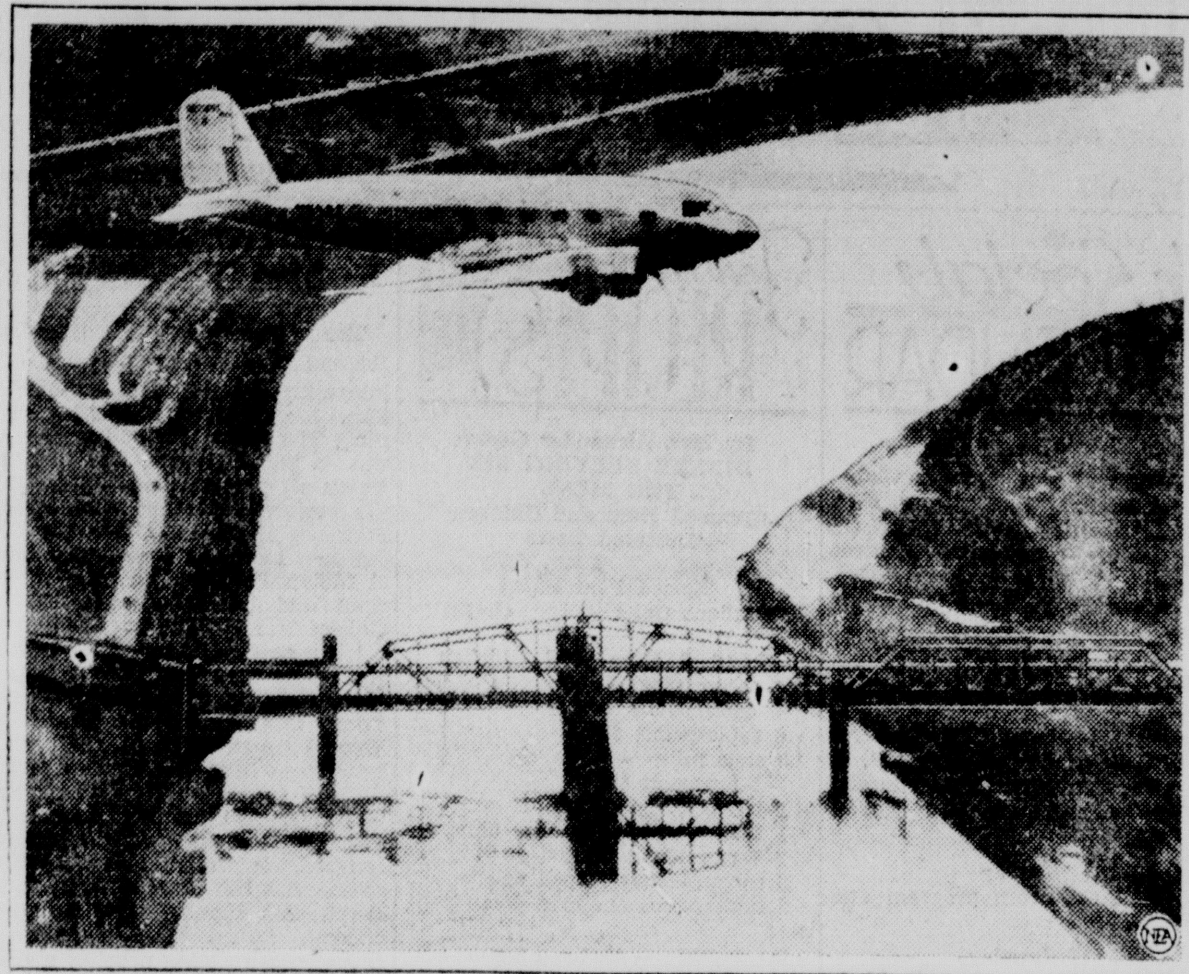

One farmer burning and cleaning up his fields and wood lots is still open to trouble from bugs from his neighbors' farm, they say. It is also recommended that legume crops, such as alfalfa, soy beans, cow peas, sweet clover, or other clovers be seeded in such areas both to keep down weeds and as shelter for bird life, for quail, pheasants, etc. The bugs steer clear of the crops listed.

Another threat in the offing to corn belt farmers is seen by many Illinois agriculturists in the relaxation of efforts to destroy the corn borer. This pest, which was checked a few years ago by state and federal activities, has reached the Illinois borders, both in Indiana and in spots in Wisconsin. The borer cleans a field of corn in spite of the farmers' efforts, once it gets in, and can spread 100 miles in a season under favorable conditions.

Oppose Cut in Budget

Director of the Budget Douglas in Washington has recommended cutting the corn borer investigation appropriation from the biennial budget for 1934-35, and corn belt interests are up in arms about it. The cut involves but about $50,000, but ends the importation of parasites for the borer, stagers of borer resistant varieties of corn.

Man Annihilates Distance; His Mediums Meet Here

Four great systems of transportation meet here—with highway over railway, spanning waterway, and always above all—pictured over the Missouri river at Kansas City, each marking an advancing stage in man's annihilation of distance. From the tortuous route at which pioneers made their way by water, autos now rush over paved highways at 60 to 80 miles an hour, streamlined trains speed over shining rails at 90 to 110 miles an hour, and palatial air liners link Atlantic and Pacific in less than 24 hours.

The action of the federal government also would nullify existing state appropriations for this work's made contingent on federal co-operation. The borer is reported working down into Kentucky, where it could spread into the cotton and sugar cane of the south.

The only reason the borer has not spread into Illinois the last three years, according to local students of the menace, is that three successive droughts have burned the eggs on the leaves of the corn plants during July and August.

A moist season this year would be unfavorable to the chinch bugs, but favorable to the corn borer, and vice versa, they maintain.

The Men's Bible Class will hold their evening of fellowship and business in the church on February 19th.

A capacity crowd witnessed the "Review the Brides" given at the Steward Methodist church under the auspices of the Ladies Aid Society last Wednesday evening.

The chaste was very beautifully decorated the color scheme being pink and white. A Bridal Arch in the center of the platform daintily trimmed with pink sweet peas and white wedding bells framed each bride in turn. It was indeed a far cry in styles from the trim modish bride of today to their quaint demure sisters of many years ago. And what a heritage of sentiment was in each gown modeled, some by the bride herself and other by daughters, granddaughters or nieces.

The program opened with a piano solo number by Miss Gertrude Fell, who also played the wedding march and accompanied several of the vocalists. Miss Mildred Henert followed with a saxophone solo, accompanied by Mrs. Glen Henert, and Miss Ethel Andes read "An Old Sweetheart of Mine," by James Whitcomb Riley.

Just before the first group of brides appeared, Mrs. Louise Foster of Rochelle in a most pleasing way sang solos in keeping with the occasion. Between group No. 1 and No. 2, Miss Ruth Oakland was heard in a stirring piano number and between No. 2 and No. 3, and after group No. 5 Miss Marie McCloy of Rockford delighted the audience with violin numbers with Miss Phelps at the piano. Between No. 3 and No. 4, James Cove sang two songs accompanying himself in his guitar. Previous to the appearing of the brides of yesterday, a quartette sang "Loves Old Sweet Song."

The finale was a Tableau of all the Brides standing in their various groups while the oldest and newest brides—"1934 and 1934"—stood in the arch and under the bells with the Chinese bride, on one hand and the Norwegian bride on the other, while the Oakland sisters sang "I Love You Truly" with added sweetness to the lovely picture.

Refreshments were served to all in the church parlors at the close of the program.

The Ladies Aid Society wishes in this public way to thank all who helped in any way to make the evening a success.

GOOD THOUGHTS FOR

GOOD PEOPLE
Humanity stands at the crossroads. The greater peace must come through good will. Whether it is possible for men to live together ultimately in peace is not a matter of choice. Sheer necessity will force the issue, because the alternative of this peace is self-destruction.

—Rev. Dr. Wm. P. Sunday

Friendliness is truly a worker of miracles, and it is as ready to serve nations as it is to serve individuals. It cannot be bought; it cannot be stimulated artificially. It is a force which has brought sincerity and unselfishness into human relationship through the ages, and which will do the same in international affairs if given the chance.

—Paul Block

Peace will come when there is a realization that only under a reign of law, based on righteousness and supported by the religious conviction of the brotherhood of man can there be any hope of a complete and satisfying life.

—Calvin Coolidge

Peace is to be served only through the promotion of good will, which the coming of Jesus Christ foretold. As Divine love transforms hate, as evil gives way to unfolding truth, the kingdoms of our Lord and mutual good, will supplant evil in the thoughts of men.

Christian Science Sentinel

From whence come wars and fightings among you? Come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members? Submit yourselves therefore to God. Resist the devil and he will flee from you. Draw nigh to God, and He will draw nigh to you.

AGGRESSION IS TO BE KEYNOTE MAJOR LEAGUES

Less "Old Pal" Stuff Is Edict of Magnates
to Players

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor
New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Major league baseball is due for some brisk, if not actually warlike action on the diamonds this year, providing the athletes carry out on the field with them the conviction of their bosses, the club owners, that the game needs more aggressive playing spirit and less fraternizing to attract increased public interest.

No special call to arms has been or will be sounded, but it is a fact that the magnates of the National League have endorsed the initiative already taken by their chief executive, John A. Heydler, in promoting more inter-club rivalry and that the American League owners are of similar mind. Heydler voiced a warning against too much fraternizing at the outset of the 1933 season.

All Favors Barred
Short of rowdism and actual hand-to-hand conflict, players will be urged to adopt the attitude that no favors are to be asked or comradeship manifested, on or off the playing field. Umpires, while not having their disciplinary powers restricted in any way, will be instructed to turn their backs upon outbursts of high dudgeon. In fact it will be quite all right with the magnates if new records are set for the standing or running high dudgeon.

Specifically, here are some of the things which club owners classify under the heading of objectionable: 1. Fraternizing between rival players around the batting cage during pre-game practice. 2. Visits of players to the opposing team's bench for purposes of discussing engagements for the evening, inquiring about the health of each other's family or debating the merits of their golf games.

No "Old Pal" Stuff
3. Manifestations of "old pal" stuff between base runners and infielders. 4. Public or private beer-drinking among players or rival teams, before or after the ball games.

The aim and object is to revive some "old time spirit" in the sport, which, in the opinion of many observers, yielded too much to the softening influences of high salaries and social activities during the boom times.

Recently, John Joseph McGraw deplored the lack of aggressive spirit among the players, although frankly admitting also that his successor in charge of the Giants, Bill Terry, did pretty well last year without engaging in many arguments. The current Giants differ from the old school in that they are more peppy than belligerent.

"Fighting Types" Missed
This brings up the concurrent problem: Where are the so-called "fighting types" of the past? The highly aggressive stamp of Dick Bartell of the Phillies, to be found?

For the last ten years at least, as old-timers point out, the heavy hand of discipline has discouraged the players from becoming over-heated. Fines and suspensions have curbed tendencies to demonstrate scrappiness on the field. Fear of inciting the fans has been in the back of the minds of managers and magnates alike. Consequently it remains to be seen how far a change in policy will prove effective without developing complications.

Levisky Build Up To Start This Eve

New York, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Seeking to build King Levisky into the status of a front-rank heavyweight contender, Madison Square Garden feeds Charley Massera, Pittsburgh youngster, to the loud-voiced, rough and tumble Chicagoan tonight.

If the King gets past Massera—and the betting was 3 to 1 he would—he will face Walter Neusel, German heavyweight, in a few weeks and perhaps battle Primo Camera for the title in June, assuming that Camera beats Tommy Loughran at Miami Feb. 22.

Massera is one of the most promising of the younger crop of big fellows but doesn't seem to have much chance against as strong a battler as the King. For all his talking and clowning, Levisky is a tough man to whip. The match is slated for ten rounds.

WILL ASK FUNDS TO ENFORCE MIN- IMUM WAGE LAW

State Law Has Been Un-enforced Since It
Was Adopted

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Illinois is to put financial teeth in its 1933 law regulating minimum wages for working women and children.

Appropriation bills will be introduced in the third special legislative session next week to make effective the law passed last June at the request of the Horner and Roosevelt administrations.

Because the regular session of the legislature failed to pass a special appropriation for the Department of Labor, the minimum wage law has been virtually inoperative for nearly eight months.

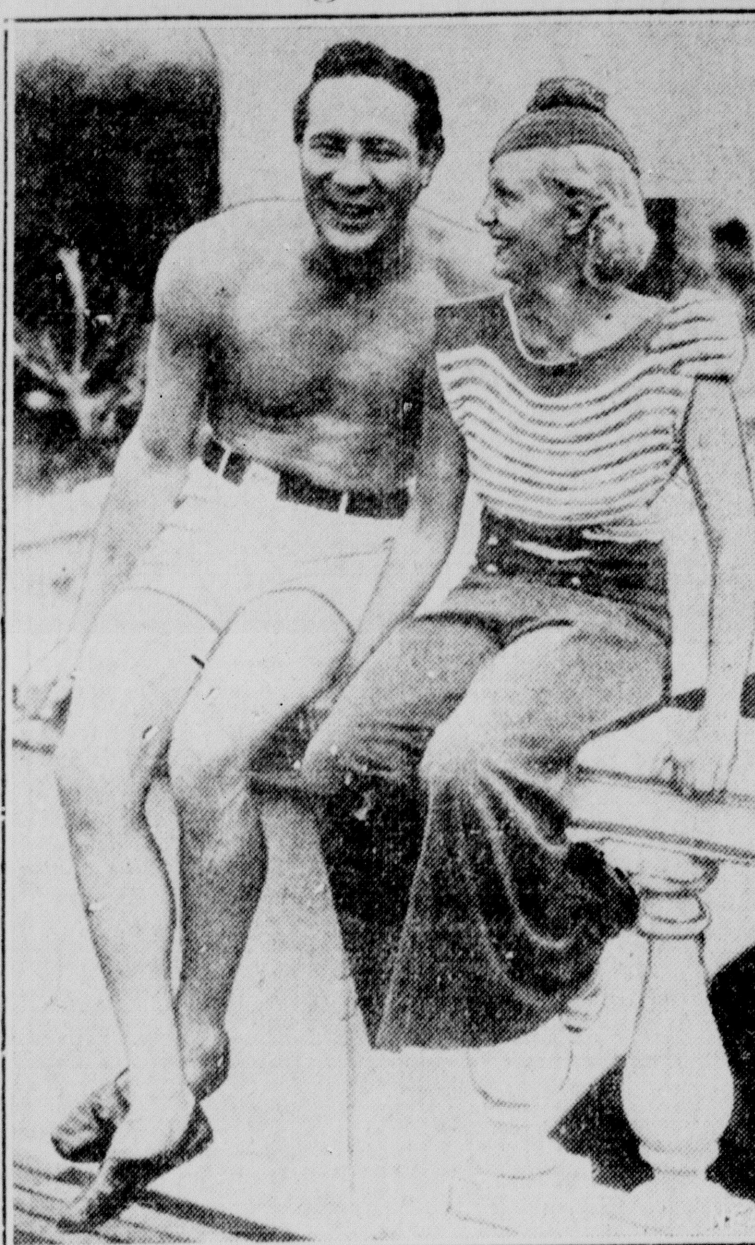

Powers Defined
"While the state law provides lower wages and longer hours than the NRA codes, our police powers are more definitely defined," said Martin P. Durkin, Director of Labor. "Enforcement of the state laws can be more rigid when we have a sufficient staff."

Durkin will sponsor an appropriation to give his department a Chief Supervisor, three Supervisors, six assistants and two Deputy Inspectors during the rest of the biennium.

Mrs. Kate F. O'Connor of Rockford was appointed Supervisor of the minimum wage law on January 1. She is the only state employee now working under the law. Durkin said that Miss O'Connor's work has been largely concerned with inspection and reporting of violations.

Violations Reported
Violations of the NRA code that have been discovered by state authorities have been reported to federal officials for prosecution.

The Prize Fighter and the Lady

There may be nothing to that romance between Max Baer and Actress June Knight, but they were pretty close when this picture was taken as they basked in a Florida sun.

Full cooperation with the NRA on violations that do not come under the state law is planned, Durkin stated.

State officials have authority to investigate working conditions that affect only women and children.

Under the statute the Labor Department has power to institute proceedings against violators of wage scale agreements, and authority to set up wage scale boards to pass on scales in various localities.

"CWA SCANDALS" PUT FORTH BY REPUBLICANS

A Pamphlet Says Setup
Was Conceived to Cover Failure

Washington, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Calls of "corruption" and "political favoritism," against the four-million-man civil works program were put forward today by the Republican National Committee as Congress speeded final touches on a bill to sink $450,000,000 more into the nearly empty CWA coffers.

House and Senate conferees hoped for an agreement before night-fall on the administration's bill, passed last night by the Senate to appropriate the $950,000,000 for CWA and relief work.

Meanwhile the House Expenditures committee framed questions to ask Harry L. Hopkins, Civil Works Administrator, who was requested to testify before it on where civil works money is going.

"CWA Scandals"
The Republican committee's criticism of civil works policies in a pamphlet, "CWA Scandals," came along soon after Republican independents in the Senate had been overwhelmed on proposals to raise the CWA-relief appropriation to a total of $2,500,000,000.

The committee asked that CWA be "liquidated" as soon as possible.

"It is unthinkable," the pamphlet asserted, "that the CWA be continued beyond the shortest time necessary to bring its affairs to an orderly close."

Declaring that its own officials had admitted "corruption" and "political favoritism," the committee said:

"Cover-Up Plan
The scandals which envelop and permeate the CWA are inherent in that organization. x x x It was an overnight set up, thrown together by a panicky administration to cover up and divert public attention from the utter failure of its recovery program x x x."

"It was a political set-up. It was organized solely to spend enormous sums of money."

A full report on CWA and some other expenditures is expected to come from Hopkins before the Expenditures committee. His presence was sought only after two demands by Representative Gifford of Massachusetts, ranking committee Republican.

Grand Opera— At 35c an Hour

CWA grand opera came to the Ozarks in a big way when Miss Edna Haseltine, shown above in the role of Aida, brought her government-sponsored cast before an audience of Missouri mountain folk. Opera stars would faint at mention of the pay which the CWA troupe draws—35 cents an hour for 24 hours a week of rehearsal and performing.

Captain Indiana Football Team is Out for Semester

Bloomington, Ind., Feb. 9.—(AP)—Jack Sprauer of Louisville, Ky., captain-elect of the 1934 Indiana University football team, withdrew yesterday for the remainder of the semester. He said, however, he plans to return next fall to play football.

Sprauer, who plays at center, explained that limited finances, and a chance to get some work in which he hopes to specialize after he graduates, led to his decision to withdraw.

Phillies' Southpaw in Jovial Humor

Philadelphia, Feb. 9.—(AP)—Lanky Roy Hansen, left-handed hurler from Chicago, passed through Philadelphia in a jovial mood. He put his signature on a 1934 contract with the Phillies yesterday, chatted affably with Gerry Nugent, president of the club, and answered questioners with optimism: "Win 14 games this year? If I don't do better than that I'll go home." Then Hansen departed, not for home, but to continue his belated honeymoon with the former Margaret Kuhn of Chicago, whom he married last October.

Step out into the SUNSHINE

How many days of your life are lost in feeling under par? How many hours which might be bright are dull and spiritless?

Half-hearted days are frequently due to common constipation. It clouds your waking hours, takes the sunshine out of living. Yet it can be overcome so easily by eating a delicious cereal.

Laboratory tests show Kellogg's All-Brans provides "bulk" and vitamin B to aid elimination. All-Brans is also a fine source of iron.

The "bulk" in All-Brans is much like that in leafy vegetables. Isn't this "cereal way" pleasanter than risking patent medicines?

Two tablespoons daily are usually sufficient. With each meal, in chronic cases. If not relieved this way, see your doctor.

Serve All-Brans as a cereal or use in muffins, breads, omelets, etc. In the red-and-green package. At all grocers. Made by Kellogg in Battle Creek.

Elwood "Kid" McReynolds, Dixon, won decision over Al Reeder, Peoria, 147 pounds.

A program which will probably consist of eight bouts, each of which is scheduled to go four rounds each, will feature the semi-finals in the Golden Gloves preliminaries at the Ottawa Avenue arena this evening, the first bout being called at 8:15.

Only the winners in the various divisions will be seen in action this evening with the outstanding boxers of the north-west section of the state participating. Some of the most select material which has not seen action thus far will step into the ring this evening to start their coveted climb to fame in the Golden Gloves tournament of 1934.

The Ottawa Avenue arena last evening accommodated a crowd of about 800 spectators, the largest that has ever assembled under one roof in Dixon to view the program of fast preliminary bouts. There were 13 bouts presented and of his number, but three classed as knockouts. William Woods from the Jack Beatty gym in Peoria met Don Kistler of Rockford in the seventh bout of the evening and from the time the gong sounded, starting the match, it required but 35 seconds before the Rockford lad was counted out.

Thornton Scores
Mickey Thornton of Spring Valley, one of the outstanding favorites, scored his second knockout in as many appearances before the local fans. His bout with Bill Powellson of Rockford lasted but 45 seconds when the up-river lad was counted out.

Fans took exceptions to the announcement of the outcome in the Elmer Selby of Peoria and Sammy Fisher of Rockford bout, the fifth of the evening. Both showed experience and ability, with a willingness to mix gloves. In the second round, Fisher was staying close to the ropes and holding on with one hand a part of the time. When the announcer collected the tickets from the judges and referee and declared Fisher the winner, the fans booed loudly. The decision was the most unpopular since the preliminaries opened on Wednesday night, and in the bout which followed the announcer was unable to present the participants when the boxing was renewed.

Clarence "Kid" Harms, of Deer Grove, punched out his second win in successive nights, disposing of Tito Guerri of Spring Valley and winning the decision.

Hess Improved
Fred "Killer" Hess of this city, showed great improvement and fought one of the best fights before a home crowd, that he has ever fought, in winning from Emil Pappas, a hard hitting heavy-weight from Freeport. Pappas was knocked down for the nine count in the second round with a hard straight right to the face, but finished in strong form.

After the three heavyweight battles, two 118 pound contestants from Peoria were presented, Charles Carter and Elwyn Coates. Coates won by the knockout route in the second round but the spectators complained of a low blow.

Kenny Lottman of Peoria won by a technical knockout over Tom Anderson of Spring Valley in the first round of their affair. Anderson was felled in one of the corners toward the middle of the opening, and was unable to come back when the second round was called.

Bill Doty of Dixon won his second fight in as many nights in defeating the hard-slugging Tommy Weatherall of Ladd. Doty opened up a bad cut over Tommy's right eye in the second and the Ladd boxer swung wildly for the finish of the bout.

Charles Navinski of Rockford outpunched Ben Bullock of Peoria to win a decision in a somewhat uninteresting match.

McReynolds Winner
Nick Goomas of Rockford had difficulty in landing his sledgehammer left hand punch in his meeting with Vincent Eberhart of Sterling. The Whiteside county boxer evaded the hard swinging southpaw punch and kept in close quarters to punch out a decision in his favor.

Pete Sacco of Rockford centered his attack on the face and head of Bert Lackey of Kewanee and won an easy decision. Lackey made his best showing in the final round when he landed four successive hard blows.

McLean Wallack of Spring Valley, who has been seen in action before local crowds on several previous occasions, met a tough customer in Ralph Togganscock of Rockford. In the second round Wallack went to the mat for the nine count, but rested up in the final round gave a good account of himself, but it was too late, and the Rockfordite was the winner of the decision.

Elwood "Kid" McReynolds of this city made his debut in the 1934 Golden Glove classic in the final bout of the evening, when he met the veteran Al Reeder of Peoria. In the first round of their fight Reeder landed a blow which brought a reprimand from Referee Jack Sharkey, and the crowd called it a low one. McReynolds out-boxed the Peorian and showed greater speed to win the decision.

Last evening's Commercial League basketball games furnished victories for the Illinois Northern Utilities Company and the Dixon Battery Shop teams. The Utilities squad forced a two-way tie for second round championship by severely trouncing Ashton, the undefeated leader previous to Wednesday by a 38-14 count. In the first game the Dixon Battery Shop won a 13-10 tussle from the Milway Hatchery.

Next Wednesday evening in the high school gym, the Battery shop will meet the I. N. U. Their last contest required two overtimes to reach a 34-28 decision in favor of the league leaders. Ashton clashed with Beier's Loafers in the other attraction.

Milways Surprise
Minus Kays and Pitney, two regulars, the Milway Hatchery was expected to be a weakened team for last evening's game. However, they left 3-0 at the quarter and 6-2 at the half. They remained in front 10-6 at the start of the final period. Here the Battery Shop stopped them and totalled seven points for the 13-10 verdict. Carlson and Hilliker had six points each for the scoring lead. Potts' four points headed the losers.

The biggest surprise of the entertainment was the 38-14 whipping inflicted by the I. N. U. Co. on Ashton. The winners were leading 10-0 at the quarter, and just before the half ended, Ashton finally scored to make it 23-2 at the rest period. The count was 33-6 at the third period. This total of 38 sets the Commercial League record for 1933-34. George Lehrs had five baskets and a free throw for 11 points and high honors. Vaughn's four baskets led Ashton.

The following is a complete scoring record of the first two rounds of the league: (Key) G-game played; B-baskets; F-free throws; P-personal fouls; Pts-total points scored.
